

Renewable Energy Stocks, A Happy Story In 2014

September 23rd, 2014 by Keith Williams

[...]

All energy stocks were affected by the financial turmoil over recent years and this led to a general decline through 2012. However, beginning in 2013, a number of solar and wind stocks have been recovering, while coal, oil and gas stock remain in the doldrums.

In 2012, John Addison wrote about high growth for wind and solar energy, but poor returns for investors.

In 2014, it is a different story.

The WilderHill New Energy Global Innovation Index (NEX) is up 15.7% for first half of 2014 (compared with S&P 500 up 6.8% and 6.7% for the NASDAQ Composite).

[...]

Read more: <http://seekingalpha.com/article/2514805-renewable-energy-stocks-a-happy-story-in-2014>